

BINKS;

Or, If you see that Man.

39698-B-1

Written and Composed by FRED W. LEIGH.

Sung by HARRY McCORMACK and WILL MAYNE.

KEY B2.

1. Now I owe a man a pen-ny, and tho' I've been wait-ing ma-ny Wea-ry years, we've not met yet— My mind's a bit un-eas-y, and I fan-cy it would please me To get out of that man's debt; For long my heart has sor-row'd'er the "stiv-er" that I bor-row'd Years a-go, when work was slack— It may doubtless seem sur-pris-ing, but I'm al-ways ad-ver-tis-ing, For I long to pay him back. I am dai-ly grow-ing thin-ner—p'r'aps the fel-low wants a din-ner, Or a Bee-cham's for his health, Or for just a drop of li-queur p'r'aps he's dai-ly grow-ing sick-er, While I owe him all this wealth—so

CHORUS.

If you see that man will you send the in-for-ma-tion on to me! He's got dou-ble bar-rel'd pants go-ing ra-ther bag-gy at the knee— He's got fun-ny lit-tle ways— shuts one eye when he winks, And his name is O-ba-di-ah Je-re-mi-ah Zach-a-ri-ah What-a-l-i-ar Binks!

2.

Now the week in which he lent it I extravagantly spent it—
 'Twas a foolish thing to do—
 I treated all my cronies to some faggots and polonies,
 And we "gorged" till all was blue.
 Ah! me, I often ponder on the way I used to squander
 When possessed of that one "D."
 My anxiety would end a treat if I could find the lender,
 Or if he discovered me.
 Oh! if I could only meet him with exuberance I'd greet him—
 Like a madman I'd behave;
 P'r'aps his whiskers need refining, or the poor chap may be pining
 For a hair-cut or a shave—so—

CHORUS.—If you see that man, &c.

3.

Now I do not think it clever for a man to never, never
 Pay the cash back he may owe—
 Some day when he is stony his accommodating crony
 Won't oblige him then, I know—
 So if I see the chappie who once made me very happy
 By obliging as he did,
 I shall spend that penny speedy, and if that chap isn't needy,
 I can borrow half-a-quad.
 So now I hope you'll ever use your very best endeavour,
 Like an artful crafty lynx,
 To discover Obadiah Jeremiah Zachariah, and the rest,
 Including Binks—so—

CHORUS.—If you see that man, &c.
