You May Have a Daughter Of Your Own

Arranged by CHAS. PAGE.

Written and Composed by FELIX Mc GLENNON.

Moderato.

mf rall.

1. In the bu - sy street, 'mid the snow and sleet,
 2. He who did be - tray foul - ly went a - way,
 3. There's a mo - ther grey, wait - ing far a - way,

Stands a wo - man, friendless and a - lone, Some poor mo - ther's child,
 Does the world condemn him for her fall? No, she bears the blame, Wait - ing for the err - ing one's re - turn, In the dear home nest, now she is re - viled, Can she for the shame - ful past a - tone?

 bears the taint - ed name, He has wealth and that a - tones for all.
 she would find sweet rest, That poor tir - ed heart she would not spurn.

How they hur - ry past, scor - ful looks are cast,
 She may droop and die, he in pla - ces high,
 Some - day she will knell, and in meek ap - peal

There is none to stretch a help - ing hand, There on ru - in's brink, Gains re - spect, perchance a maid - en's love, Ah, the pow'r of gold,
 At the Mas - ter's feet her bur - den cast, He will not de - spise, deep - er let her sink, This is such a pure and vir - tuous land.

 hearts are bought and sold, There's no pi - ty for the poor soild dove.
 He will hear her cries, He will wash her white as snow at last.

CHORUS.

You may have a daugh - ter of your own, Who may be left de - sert - ed and a - lone, She once was pure and win - ning, she's more sined a - gainst, than sin - ning, Then don't be the first to cast a stone.
