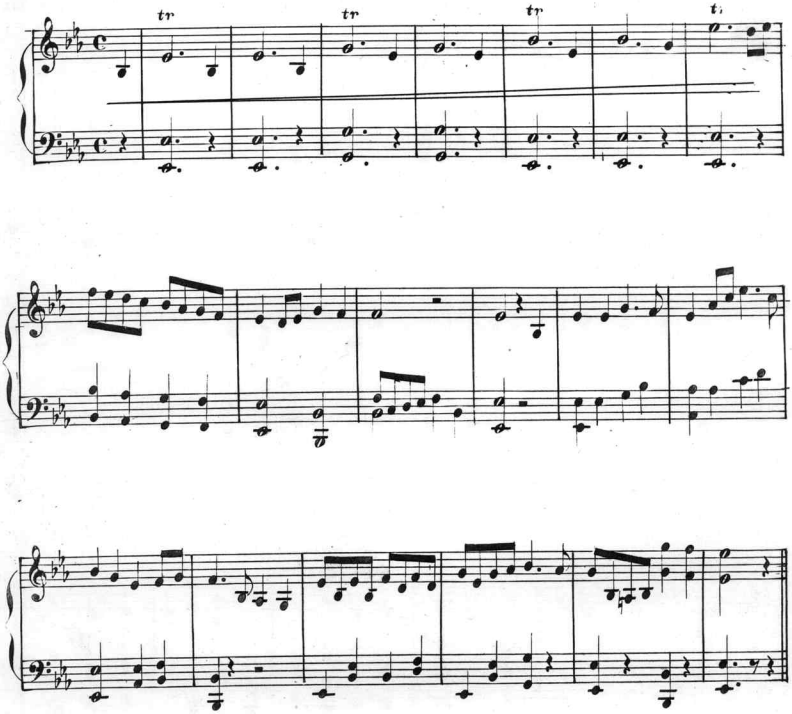
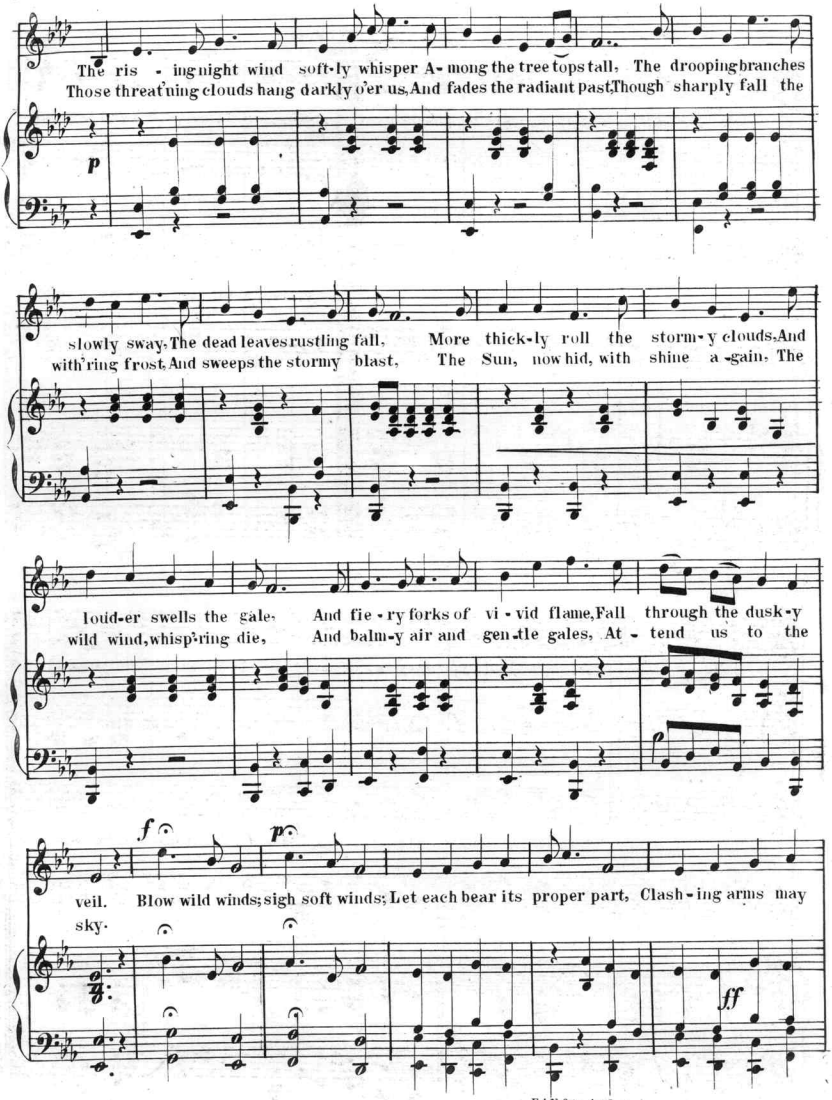
THE RISING NIGHT WINDS SOFTLY WHISPER.

Music by N. Grier Moore.



Entd according to Act of Congress 1873 by F.A. North & Co. in the office of the Librarian of Congress at Washington.



The ris - ing night wind soft-ly whisper A- mong the tree tops tall, The drooping branches Those threat'ning clouds hang darkly o'er us, And fades the radiant past, Though sharply fall the p slowly sway, The dead leaves rustling fall, More thick-ly roll the storm-y clouds, And with'ring frost, And sweeps the stormy blast, The Sun, now hid, with shine a-gain, The loud-er swells the gale- And fie-ry forks of vi-vid flame, Fall through the dusk-y wild wind, whisp'ring die, And balm-y air and gen-tle gales, At-tend us to the f
veil. Blow wild winds; sigh soft winds; Let each bear its proper part, Clash-ing arms may sky.
