birds sweet-ly car-ol all day their mer-ry song. The sound of the an-vil rang out so loud and clear. Now naught but the sound of the hun-ter's gun is heard. Though old hick'-ry log blaz-ing bright-ly on the hearth, A changed is the spot where the school house used to stand, The long years have passed they have fleet-ed like a dream, I mother's kind hand stretched out to bless and love. I an-vil and forge wrapt in ob-liv-ious gloom. But still prize the spot where once I used to rove. Sweet see in my dreams where I've sport_ed in my youth, A - -
