Gordon's ENLARGED and IMPROVED EDITION has, during the short time it has been before the public, received the most flattering testimonials and testimonials from both Teachers and Musicians.

The original work received the highest commendations from such artists as S. THALBERG, ALFRED JAEGLI, Wm. MASON, CARL BERGMANN, GEO. F. ROOF, JULIUS KNORR, OTTO DRESEL, LOWELL MASON, H. PEREZARAY, and a host of others. But we found a wide spread opinion among practical and instructive matter, to so grade the elementary part that the work should be progressive from beginning to end. Its hearty acceptance by the profession proves that we have been entirely successful. We have also discarded all melodies or recreations that were hackneyed, and have inserted in their place melodies by the best authors.

WE CLAIM FOR IT THE FOLLOWING:

- 1st. It begins at the very first principles.
- 2d. It advances gradually, the exercises and recreations being carefully and progressively graded.
- 3d. That the system we have adopted of uniting pleasure and study, by following an exercise by a melody or recreation, that contains the same general principles, is best fitted to encourage the pupil to press on.
- 4th. In selecting exercises great care has been taken to obtain melodious exercises; the popular studies of Concone, Croises and Duvernoy, have been thoroughly gleaned and the best inserted.
- 5th. The melodies or recreations inserted are from the best authors and are in sympathy and accord with the spirit of the preceding exercise.
- 6th. To strengthen the fingers and give the proper technique, we have liberally scattered through the work the standard exercises from "Plaidy's Technical Studies."
- 7th. A good feature of the work is the manner in which the scales are introduced, beginning on page 56. A short study of the scale is followed by a recreation and exercise in same key, to familiarize the pupil with each key. The scales and exercises are also introduced in a complete form on page 108 and three succeeding pages.
- 8th. The studies ana exercises are not from the pen of any one author, but they have been carefully gleaned from such authors as Plaidy, Concone, Czerny, Clementi, Juanten, Heller, Croises, Beyer and Bertini.
- 9th. The present work contains all that is good in the original work.
- 10th. Selections have been made from Czerny's celebrated letters on the study of music, which will prove of great value to student.
- 11th. Harmony and through bass are briefly and clearly explained at the close of the work. The student will find that familiarity with all the chords will enable him to progress with much greater rapidity.
- 12th. Modulation. As every young Pianist desires to gain some knowledge of modulation, we have given 46 examples of modulation from the key of C to every other key, both major and minor.

Lastly, it is the unanimous opinion of every Teacher who has used Gordon's Improved Richardson "that it is the best instruction book" published.

THE VOICE OF THE PROFESSION.

From the Director of Geneva Musical Institute, Geneva, N. Y., October 28, 1874.
 I have used, in teaching, the several editions of Richardson, and am confident that your new and enlarged edition is one of the best piano-forte instruction books extant. I take pleasure in recommending it to pupils desiring to become thorough performers on that instrument.

From Principal of Musical Academy, Lyons, N. Y., January 18, 1874.
 Having examined Richardson's New Modern School for the piano-forte, I am convinced that it is one of the most valuable instruction books yet published. It combines the virtues of the "Modern School" and the "New Method" (by the same author, and is evidently compiled by one who understands the wants of teachers and pupils. It faithfully and properly divides it amongst full to produce good players, both in a technical and musical sense.

O. B. ADAMS.
 A fragment from letter of William Mason, the eminent American Pianist.
 I regard the "Modern School for the piano-forte" superior in many respects to any work of the kind I have ever seen, and consider it particularly adapted to the wants at the present time, and to the great advancement which has been made in piano-forte playing. It contains the best useful exercises found in other works, besides many new and modern ones arranged in a simple and progressive manner.

Your book cannot fail to meet the approbation of all good teachers, and it must have an important influence in promoting the rapidly advancing course of musical education in our country.

From G. W. Feltz, Oct. 17, 1874.
 I have examined with care "Gordon's Enlarged Edition" of the New Modern School. The large additions of progressive exercises, studies and melodies greatly enhance its value, while the directions interspersed throughout the work must prove of great value in aiding the teacher in directing attention to the indispensable rules for attaining a free execution and a practical knowledge of music.

From Willard's Musical Visitor, June, 1874.
 Richardson's new Modern School for Piano is a new work from the pen of Nathan Richardson, a man whose former efforts have prospered with greater success and received more flattering testimonials than any other man who has entered a similar field. His new work has been gotten up with great care and contains the best of his former writings, besides a vast amount that is new. We think this work a meritorious one, and believe that it will receive the approbation of all who examine it.

From Kalamazoo College, Mich., Sept. 16, 1874.
 After very careful examination of Richardson's New Modern School, I pronounce it one of the best books for beginners I have met.

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1874.
 I have examined the "Richardson New Modern School," and think it a great improvement on either of the other Richardson methods. I have used both, and find this a very complete school for piano-forte.

Fragment of note from Geo. F. Root.
 I have no hesitation in saying that I consider it the best piano-forte instruction book, in all respects, that has ever come under my notice, and I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends and the public.

From Chas. Fabel, Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 1, 1874.
 The merits of your "New Modern School for the Piano-forte" places it ahead of all other instruction books. The arrangement of it is such as to keep the pupil interested, and in pleasant anticipation of his new lessons.
 The New Modern School contains the shortest courses from the beginning to the greatest demands of modern composition, representing a number of the best composers.
