In speaking of the above book, Sep. Winner, the eminent composer, says:—Having used the new "Parlor Organ School," by E. Mack, recently published by you, I do not hesitate to pronounce it a valuable work for the use of Teachers and one that is calculated to advance the pupil in a correct and speedy manner.

Thos. A'Becket, Jr. says:—After examining "Mack's Parlor Organ School," it affords me much pleasure to express my appreciation of the composer's efforts to present to the public a comprehensive work. I hope it will receive all the support its merits deserve.

Eastburn, the popular composer, writes thus:—I have thoroughly examined "Mack's School for Parlor Organ," and have no hesitation in pronouncing it far superior to any work of the kind which has yet been brought to my notice. It is arranged in progressive form and is just what teachers have been in need of for years past.

Wm. H. Dana, President of Dana's Musical Institute, Warren, Ohio, writes thus:—I have examined "Mack's Organ School" and find it to be an excellent book for teachers, containing many features that recommend it above other works of a similar character.

A. H. Rosewig, the popular author, sends the following:—I have received your "Mack's Organ Book" and am much pleased with it. It contains many pretty and useful selections, and cannot fail to command a large and ready sale.

In speaking of the above book, Charles Grobe, the well known composer, and musical director of the Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, N. J, writes—At your request, I have examined "School for the Parlor Organ by E Mack," and it gives me great pleasure to add my testimony to its general excellence. It is admirably progressive and arranged in a manner that greatly facilitates the advances of the pupil.
