Out John! Out John! what are you a - - bout John?
 Run John! run John! there's an oth - er dun John!
 Oh John! go John! the hatter's knock I know John!

If you don't say o - ut at once, you'll make the fel - low doubt John!
 Tell the ba - ker he may call, to - morrow week at one John!
 Tell him that all yes - ter - day, I sought him high and low John!

Say I'm out who - - ev - er calls, and hide my hat and cane John!
 If he says he saw me at the win - dow as he knocked John!
 Tell him just be - - fore he came, you saw me mount the hill John!

Say you're not the le - a - s - t i - dea, when I shall come a - - gain John!
 Make a face and shake your head, and tell him you are shocked John!
 Say you think I'm o - n - ly gone to pay his lit - tle bill John!

Let the people leave their bills, but tell 'em not to call John!
 Take your pocket handkerchief, and put it to your eye John!
 Then I think you'd bet - ter add, that if I miss to - - day John!

Say I'm courting Miss Rupee, and mean to pay them all John!
 Say your master's not the man, to bid you tell a lie John!
 You're po - si - tive I mean to call when next I pass his way John!

REPLY.

O Sir! O Sir! here's a pretty go sir!
 Alass Sir! Alass Sir! the bills are coming fast - er:
 Now Sir! Now Sir! I can not tell you how - sir, The Eight and for - ty cre - di - tors are wait - ing down be - low sir! The You'd bet - ter try to raise the fonds to pay the dancing mas - ter. He duns are break - ing down the doors, and kick - ing up a row sir. The tailor's got his lit - tle bill of dol - lars twen - ty four sir! He says he learnt you how to dance the Pol - ka ver - y light sir! And waiters from the eat - ing house, are mad enough to die sir! Be - says that you must set - tle up, be fore he leaves the door sir! The says that you must set - tle up, and pay it all to night sir! The cause your hab - its were so fow l in eat - ing chick - en pie sir! They washer woman's in a rage, and crying that she knows sir Un shoema-ker is at the door, and looking black as coal sir. He say you eat on ev'ry day a dollars worth a - bout sir. And less you pay that eighteen pence, you can not have your clothes sir.
