

Music Events

From the musical point of view, this week-end is slightly phenomenal for Washington. A chamber music festival at the Library of Congress and Lawrence Tibbett's appearance in Constitution Hall make it so.

The festival, honoring Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge on her 80th birthday, opens tonight at 8:30 o'clock and closes Tuesday evening with choreography by Martha Graham and company. This last, which exactly parallels Monday night's performance, was scheduled as a result of public demand. Miss Graham, our favorite dance artist, will do compositions by three of our favorite living composers, Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith and Darius Milhaud. The combination will be impressive.
