My love is like a tempting peach

My love is like a tempting peach
On graceful bough so high:
Oh woe is me! she's out of reach,
In vain I long and sigh.

The rosy beauty of her cheek
Doth rival peaches' bloom;
Her tresses have such golden sheen,
They'd light the darkest gloom.

Alack-a-day! she loves me not,
My endless grief I own —
My love is like a tempting peach;
They both have hearts of stone!

My love is like a tempting peach
