A young man sat in sor-row While all oth-ers seemed so gay, They would sail for home to-mor-row To their lovd ones far a-way. But a let-ter this lad had just received From the girl who said she'd wait, Saying:

"I am mar-ried, dear, I am sor-ry you were late." His bud-dy tried to cheer him, But he on-ly shook his head. "A brok-en heart you can-not mend?" To his bud-dy he then said.

CHORUS. Moderato espressivo

Oh, but this is a sad old world, — Its joy no more I can see. Yes - ter - day ev - 'ry - thing seemed so bright, For I thought she was wait - ing for me. — But to - day the sor - row is fill - ing my heart, To be left in this world all a - lone. — I re - turn to - mor - row with a brok - en heart, For there is no one to wel - come me home.
