

MUSIC PUBLISHING, PHONOGRAPH RECORD AND MUSIC ROLL RIGHTS FOR SALE

Firms wishing to buy this song or makes records or music rolls of same, send offers to owner of copyright

Freedom and Liberty

Words by
W. P. J. MURRAY

Melody by
ROBT. H. BRENNEN

Moderato

1. The glo - ry of the world now looks to thee, Fair
2. Thy foes' true aim was the world to op - press! They land of hope and Lib - er - - ty. The had no thought for mans hap - pi - ness; Their cry once more as free - dom calls, Ech - oes plans were of plun - der and wide do - min - ion, com - thro' the marts and halls. It is heard by the forge, it plete in all things but man's good op - in - ion. They rav - ished the maid and de - rings in the mill. The an - swers prompt from vale and filed the wife For kill ing to them was their joy of hill. Thy sons are proud too proud to fight, But not for life; As they mur - dered the help - less they failed to drown, In their free - dom in de - fense of right.
quest for glo - ry and wide re - nown.

3.

The hour has struck and the time draws nigh,
When the foeman's flag which gleams on high,
Will sink in the dust of the ruin it made;
As the world moves on with freedom's aid,
To the glorious day when all are free,
And can mould or mar their destiny,
No longer plagued with the cursed beast,
Who would starve the world that it may feast.

Copyright 1918 by W. P. J. Murray, Harrison Bldg, Phil'a, Penn.