"Somewhere In France Is My Sweetheart" Vera L. Shannon.

One day a gallant ship left port to brave the raging sea;
Upon it was a soldier boy, who's all the world to me;
And I recall his farewell words, as he kissed me good bye;
He wiped away my falling tears and bade me not to cry;
So I will try to be so brave, and so brave I will be,
Until my soldier boy comes back from far across the sea.

CHORUS.

Somewhere In France is my sweetheart, fighting for Freedom and Right; (night;
" " " " " in the thick of the smt and shell to ki
" " " " " just where he does not tell--
And I kneel in pray'r for him, out there, as I pray that he'll come back to m me!!

To day I got a letter, and I'm feeling better, quite,
He says the loves and that he will be true day and night;
Now, don't you wish your sweetheart, he was writing back to you;
And telling you about his love--his love so fond and true?
He's landed safely, there in France, and he will take his chance;
I know he'll do his duty but the Flag, and us and France!
