"When The Doves Are Nesting In The Cannon Once Again" Mrs.A.T.Hugaas.

1

A gay young lad in Khaki clad had come home in the Spring;
With his sweetheart from from he'd part; they sat there in the swing;
In her eyes tears they told her fears, that he'd return-her prayer-
Then came good bye, with many a sigh--and these words on the air:

CHORUS.

"When the doves are nesting in the cannon once again,
And the Peace has filled all hearts and minds;
I'll return to you, dear Grace--then he kissed her dear sweet face--
Was the girl that he left behind.

2

Just a year had passed, and he came at last, from far across the foam;
With all the rest that we loved best, he came a marching home;
No tears she shed, a smile, instead, and in her heart a song,
Again each word that once she'd heard, they floated out so strong:
