"When The Angelus Is Ringing, Mother--Pray For Uncle Sam!"
By Grace E. Humphrey.

1

In a little Southern village there's an Angelus ringing there;
Calling ev'ry soul to pray for our success;
For our President, and Country and our boys off fighting where
They can serve their Country and their dear ones best;
When the lads marched from the town there was one there with eyes of blue
And a brow as white alily petals bright;
Stopped to kiss a gray haired mother and to press her wrinkled hand,
And to whisper pray that things may turn out right."

When the Angelus is ringing, mother, pray for Uncle Sam!
And the knowledge that you pray will help us fight:
Ask the Lord to help us mothers and our brothers, over there;
Where the blood drenched fields they greet our tired sight;
If you ask the Lord to bless us, he will listen, dear, to you;
And His blessings He will pour upon our land;
When the Angelues is ringing, mother, don't forget to pray;
For your boy, and pray, oh pray for Uncle Sam!

3

At the ringing of the Angelus one faithful mother stands,
With bowed head and prays for dear old Uncle Sam;
As she sees by faith the victry that with God's help will be won,
And she hears the whispered words of Christian son;
"Peace on earth" she hears him say "good will, good will toward all men,
And the message by an angel band is quickly borne to him.
At the ringing of the Angelus as she stands there alone,
And listens to its message in the bells sweet silver tone. OVER

CHORUS.

When the Angelus is ringing, mother pray for Uncle Sam,
Pray for victory, and that I come home all right,
Pray that we may beat the foe, pray that all ends well, and so
When the Angelus is ringing, mother, pray for Uncle Sam!
