"The Boys Of Liberty"
Harry L. James.

1

Each soldier boy is filled with joy, as he marches proud away;
To fight for home and liberty and the goodold U.S.A.
They're all true blue to me, and you, and the land they love so well;
And each soldier boy he is proud to say, as he bids his last farewell:

CHORUS.

We are the Sons Of Liberty, from the Home of the Free and the Brave!
Where our Forefathers fought for Freedom, and for us their lives they gave;
We fight for Home and Country !and for the Flag that set us free!
For we are the Sons of America--and we fight for Humanity!

2

Each mother's son, yes, ev'ryone, he is fighting for the Right;
With sturdy step and trusting heart, do they fight with main and might!
It's do or die, with colors high, that's the battle cry of all;
So each soldier son of Sweet Liberty, you can hear this cheering call:
