"Will We See Them Once More?" By Arthur M. Lupe.

We are sending our Boys far away--off to another shore;
To fight--uphold the honor of the country they adore;
And those of us they leave behind must help them more and more!
With the aid of Almighty God--we'll see them all once more.

CHORUS.

Oh, but the boys will be mighty glad of anything that we may do;
No matter how trifling it may seem it will remind them to Remember the ones that they left behind--those that they love and adore;
And who are wondering and thinking: "Will we see them once more?"

2

Don't always be a pessimist and always cast a gloom;
On our Boys who've gone over, and who'll fight night, morn and noon;
We will admit that times are hard but that's no reason, now
That we should not help all we can the boys who're fighting now.
