LAFAYETTE WE HAVE COME!

(Dedicated to General J.J. Pershing and all our brave soldiers.)

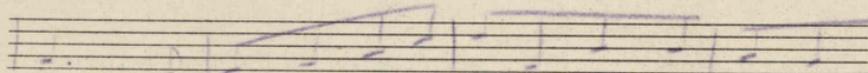

Words by James Henry.

Music by Luther A. Clark.

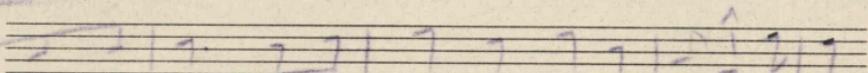

Tempo di Marcia.

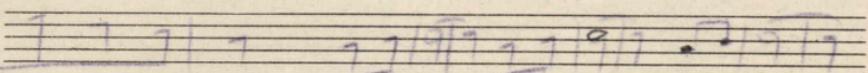

In the lovely land of France, where the battle rages strong, They fight for freedom of this world, the right against the wrong. We have heard your call to succor; to save your dear-loved home, "Lafayette, we have come! Lafayette, CHORUS.

we have come!" Glory, glory to your courage, Honor to your sacred tomb, Glory, glory to your spirit, "Lafayette, we have come!"

2.

From our dream of fortune's fame, from our golden-laden trance,
We've wakened and remember now our duty to dear France.
With the best of all our treasures, from General to drum,
"Lafayette, we have come! Lafayette, we have come!"

5.

Backers in our homeland dear, who are steadfast, brave and true,
They're helping to their utmost now in all that they can do.
We are here to fight the battles of freemen, all and some,
