

OCT 14 1918

Homeland.

Words and Music by
Charles A. Hottelkins.

This a grand old Con. try
And when don't you throat out
We will sing of Home-land

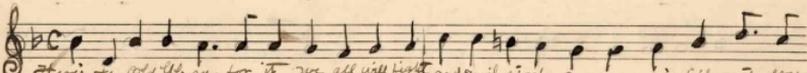

This Home-land of yours and mine a God give us Home of the free
You will find us in the Ranks all the time hard to do their parts
When the Sun light shadows fall and Comrades come to begin to meet

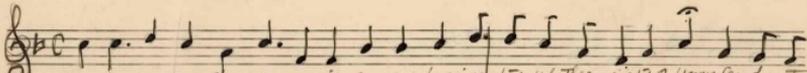

The cherish it and bless it with a love that's divine
We are soldiers of a - mer - i - c a just Huskies and Yanks
And all though you assail us they will find us fighting all our own free country of Liberty and U. S. A is Wells, many hearts for Uncle Sam who never knew defeat

Chorus

Here's to Old Glory, for it we all will fight and smile at the en - em - y's, Eff - er - ary

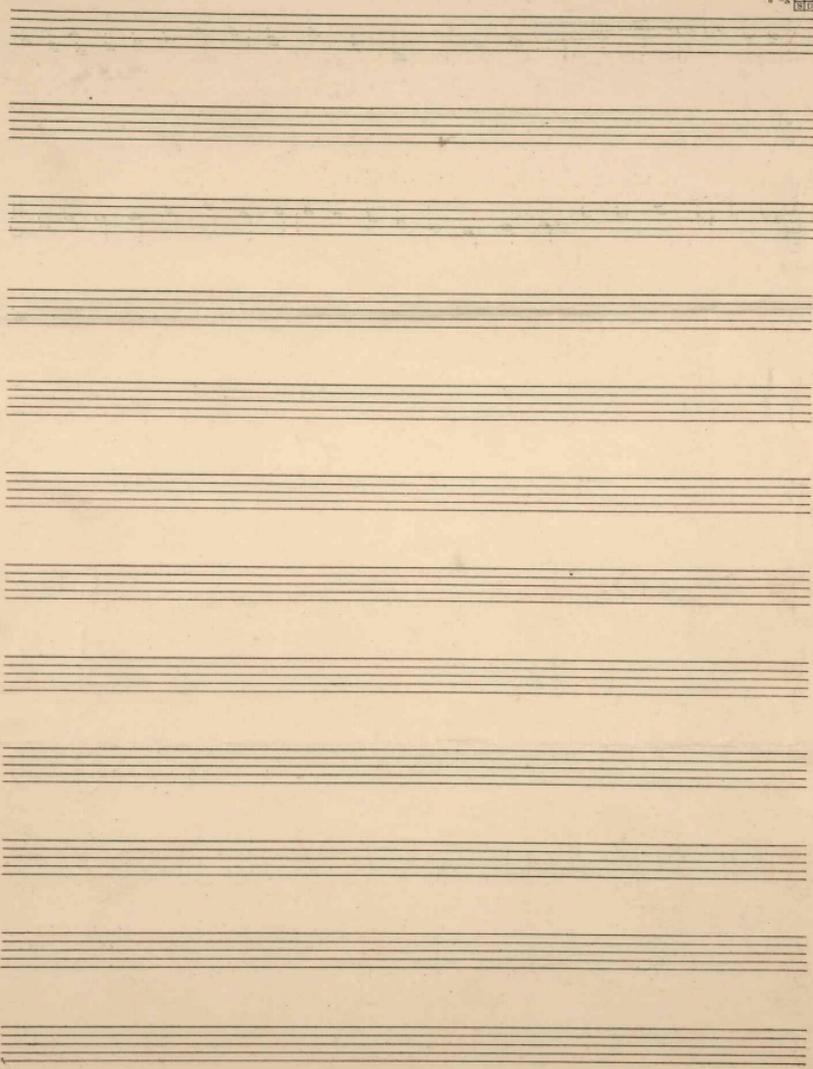

And turn to our Country may it ever be right but whether right or wrong Con. Country

Homeland

words and music by
Charles A. H. Schiller.

It is a land of glory, this Homeland and what danger there is, you will find it
We will sing of Homeland when the night comes and we are given time to see the banks all stirring, for do the feet of darkness fall, and our voices begin to meet

© 1918
S.M.

OCT 14 1918

R.

HOMELAND

1.

It's a grand old Country, this "Homeland" of yours and mine,
A God-given home of the free.
We cherish it, and bless it, with a love almost "Divine"
Our own precious land of Liberty.

Refrain

Here's to "Old Glory," for it we all will fight
And smile, at the enemy's effrontry,
And here's to "Our Country," may it ever be right,
But whether Right or Wrong, "Our Country."

2.

And when danger threatens, you will find us in the "Ranks",
All striving hard to do our part.
We are Soldiers of America, just Huskies, and Yanks
And U. S. A. is written on our hearts.

Refrain

—Copyrighted by Charles A. Hotchkiss, July, 1918.
2596 North Ave.,
Bridgeport, Conn.

NOTE.—The last two lines in the Refrain were suggested to the writer by a toast, given by a U. S. Naval Officer, a number of years ago.—C. A. H.